Regal ideas Inc. donates medical supplies to St. Paul's Hospital frontline staff.

Aluminum Railing Leader is on a mission to help the Nurses and Doctors in the community.

(Delta, BC) – Regal ideas Inc., the world's leading manufacturer of Aluminum railing systems has sourced and is donating masks to frontline healthcare workers at Vancouver's St Paul's Hospital.

This is one shipment of many that has been hand delivered to the hospital. Regal ideas reach will expand to other hospitals and provinces in response to the growing need for masks and other personal protective equipment for frontline healthcare professionals combating COVID-19.

"We are awed and inspired by the selfless acts of courage and heroism by God's earthly Angels as they put their lives on the line every day for all of Humanity... it compels us to act!", states Ernie Couillard, Executive Vice President for Regal ideas Inc.

The first 200 KN95 masks were hand delivered by 10-year old Regal ideas ambassador, Mason Sekura, to St. Paul's Hospital in Vancouver.

Regal ideas hope is that others take a moment and support in any way they can to help protect as many local medical teams as possible during this rapidly evolving pandemic. Regal ideas started its sourcing for personal protective equipment weeks ago and is on a mission to connect with companies and other business owners to take part in this mission. "We all have our connections, so if we all do our part, we can build a better tomorrow, today" comments Mr Couillard.
